

1. The big bell

David: Red, are you looking forward to your first day at school?

Red: Noooo.

David: You're not?

Red: No.

David: Why, Red? What's the matter?

Red: I'm scared?

David: You're scared? Why, Red?

Red: Red – no friends.

David: Oh, Red! You do have friends. You know Holly, and you know Charlie. They're your friends.

Red: I'm scared. Too many children.

David: Well... there are a lot of children, but... at the end of the day, Red, they will all be your friends.

Bell

David: Come on, Red! Let's go to school!

2. In the classroom

David: Hello, my name is David. And this is Red. He's Holly's friend ...

Teacher: Holly's friend? Hello, Red! How are you?

Red: Hmm. OK...

David: He's feeling a bit lonely today... He says he hasn't got any friends...

Teacher: Oh, don't worry, Red. There are lots of lovely children here. I'm sure you'll soon make friends.

David: Look, Red, there's Holly...

Teacher: Why don't you go and sit with Holly over there?

Red: No.

David: Go on, Red. Sit down next to Holly.

Red: No. David – come.

David: Red, it's school. Go and sit next to Holly.

Holly: Hi, Red! Come and sit over here.

Red: David is my friend.

David: OK then, Red...

Boy: Hey, look! He's wearing the same school uniform as us!

Holly: Hi, Red!

Red: David! David!

Teacher: OK, children, today we're going to be doing maths.

Children: Urrggghhh!

Teacher: Maths is wonderful. We're just going to start with a little easy-peasy question, and whoever gets the answer right can come to the board and they can be Teacher, and they can ask the next question... OK. Ready? What is... three times six?

Teacher: Oh! Lots of hands up... Ummm... Sophie... No, Holly...

Holly: Eighteen?

Teacher: Excellent, Holly. You can come and be teacher. You can ask the next question.

Holly: What's... two plus two?

Holly: Red...

Red: Two plus two? Errrrr.... Two plus two? Two plus two?

Holly: Two plus two is...? Two plus two?

David: Red! Two plus two is... four!

Red: Four!

Holly: Yes, well done! You can be teacher now.

Red: Red – teacher... Question... Errrrr... Scissors! Rulers! Pencils! Scissors! Rulers! One, two! Pencils! Three, four! Scissors! Rulers! Pencils!

David: Wait, Red...! What's the question?

Red: Errrrr.... Scissors!

David: Scissors? ... Oh! You want them to take their scissors out?

Red: Yeah! Scissors!

David: Does anybody have any scissors here?

David: And what do you want them to do with the scissors?

Red: Make music! One, two, three, four!

David: One, two, three, four?

Red: Hmm!

David: Ah! One, two, three four! Like ... one, two, three, four...

Teacher: What are you doing, Red?

Red: Pencils!

David: Pencils? ... Ah! You want them to take their pencils out?

Red: Make music!

David: Does anybody have any pencils here?

David: OK... And now?

Red: Music! ... One, two! One, two! ... Pencil, pencil...

Red: Rulers! Rulers!

David: Do you want them to take their rulers out?

Red: Yes, yes!

David: OK...

Red: On three...

Red: Scissors, scissors, scissors...

Red: One and one is two... Two and two is four... And three and three is six... And four and four is eight... And five and five is ten... Yeah! Red – song! All together! All together!

3. After school

David: Oh, Red, there you are! How was school?

Red: Great!

David: Did you enjoy it?

Red: Yes, yes!

David: Oh, good... And did you make any friends?

Red: Many friends!

David: Really?

Girl 1: Thank you, Red, for a great maths lesson!

Girl 2: Come on, Red. Let's go and play!

David: Bye, Red!

THE END